

In May, at the AGM, Dave Morgan was elected as the new President of the BBSA. To say he has taken on his new role in 'interesting' times for the industry and the Association is an understatement. Yet the BBSA has always shown, for example recently with the organisation of Showcase 08 and the development of the Shade Project, that it is capable of responding to anything that business life throws at it.

One thing Dave is passionate about is the importance of greater member involvement, particularly through attendance at regional meetings and participation in Association activities and initiatives.

Already one such new initiative is in progress – Showcase Scotland described in greater detail on Page 56. This is being organised entirely by BBSA members in Scotland who represent a good cross section of the industry in the region. They believe that this strong area should have its own exhibition. They're right. So if you want to sell to this lucrative market or are looking for new suppliers, then please be there.

We keep a watchful eye on the legions of Romans, the health and safety features of blinds are examined. We ask whose training schemes pass the test, spend a day with a blind maker and review Showcase Scotland.
